EXECUTIVE PROGRAM

Harnessing the power of intellectual property

STRATEGIC INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY MANAGEMENT

September 18 and 19, 2006, Geneva

WORLD
INTELLECTUAL
ORGANIZATION

OVERVIEW

Intellectual Property (IP) is a valuable corporate asset and a strategic business tool. Increasing significance of intangible assets is forcing business organizations to actively manage intellectual property as a key driver for building and sustaining competitive advantage.

Designed for senior executives, the intensive two-day program examines the role of IP as a strategic business tool using case studies, industry best practices and interactive discussions. Eminent business school academics and corporate decision-makers will share their insights and experience on how IP can be leveraged for enhanced and enduring competitive advantage. Participants will have an opportunity to reflect on and apply these principles and practices to their respective business environment and industry context.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This program is designed for entrepreneurs, board members and senior executives in large or small firms who seek a strong working knowledge of intellectual property management. The program is beneficial to general managers who want to deepen their IP knowledge and understand how management of IP assets impacts value creation. IP managers who seek broader perspectives and strategists who want to explore the latest IP practices will also find the program useful.

FACULTY

James G. Conley, Professor, Kellogg School of Management, Evanston

James Conley serves on the faculty of both the Kellogg School of Management and the McCormick School of Engineering at Northwestern University. He teaches courses on Innovation Process Management, Intellectual Capital Management, and other related subjects to both graduate student and executive education audiences.
