Episode

Pororo was busy building his sled when some friends come along asking for help with their broken sled. After carefully inspecting the sled, Pororo realizes it was not one of his. He then creates the “Porong-Porong Super Sled” and sticks his labels on his sled. Later on, Pororo’s friends who want the Porong- Porong Super Sled gather at his house.

This episode explains that the function of a trademark is to distinguish one product from another, and shows the process of developing a trademark as well.

It also highlights the fact that proper use of trademarks is beneficial to consumers as well as manufacturers.

Lesson Objectives

- To understand trademarks.
- To understand why we need trademarks.
- Invent trademarks and apply them.

Workbook

Pororo and his friends invented the sled. There are two jet-propelled sleds, one made by the Rabbit Twins and the other by Pororo and his friends.

Observe the two sleds carefully to decide which one has been made by Pororo and circle it.

Pororo Makes His Mark 3

Pororo and his friends have decided to give their sled a name as a trademark. At the beginning they thought of names like Airplane or Prettiest Sled or Fast Fast.

Unfortunately these names cannot be used as a trademark. Think about why not and connect them with appropriate reasons.

Superjet

As the meaning of this expression is too vague, the trademark would confuse people on what a product does.

Prettiest Sled

This trademark uses a common name that could mislead people.

Velocity

This trademark gives no specific information about the product.

Pororo and his friends have decided to use the trademark for the sled they have invented: the 'Porong-Porong Super Sled'.

What part of the sled did 'Porong-Porong' remind them of?
Let's show it in the picture below.

Try expressing the engine sound from the sled in ways other than 'Porong-Porong'.
