1. Existence of a practice regarding the handling of deposited microorganisms after the expiration of the period of storage prescribed in Rule 9.1 of the Regulations under the Budapest Treaty

Yes.

2. Description of the practice

At the expiration of the storage period, CChRGM will contact and request the depositor to indicate whether the deposited microorganism can be returned to the depositor, remain stored at CChRGM against a fee or destroyed.

Where CChRGM can't contact the depositor, it can decide on how to handle the deposited microorganism, either continue to store it or destroy it.

3. Documentation and links

No.
