Our Mapuche ancestral authorities, spiritual healers and wisdom have preserved the knowledge of our ancestors since time immemorial. The situation currently being experienced in our territories has led us to take action in relation to the protection of our cultural heritage, while being aware that States must guarantee its protection, we as the descendants must work to combine efforts in preserving, maintaining and promoting all the tangible and intangible cultural property for our well being, in a natural, social and community environment, and on the other hand seek international instruments for the enhancement of our work.

Country in which the Organization is primarily active:

In Santiago de Chile, with the participation of families that have emigrated to the city.

Additional Information:

Please provide any additional information which you feel may be relevant (maximum 150 words)

The vision which associates the indigenous world with rural or community areas, has changed significantly in the recent past, with more than 27 per cent of the national indigenous population currently concentrated in the cities, as a result of migration. This situation has led to an assimilation and stigmatization of ancestral knowledge, indigenous culture, customs and traditions, and the loss of the Mother Language. Indigenous leaders have to date struggled for their recognition as part of the Mapuche People. However, this has not been possible, and they currently remain without the right to land or to establish a community in Santiago. Concept of Urban Indigenous Persons: these are persons descended from the different Indigenous Peoples and who identify themselves as members of or belonging to an indigenous culture, who reside temporarily or permanently in the city for different migrational reasons (forced or voluntary).

Also, at the same time to enhance our participation in order to allow our indigenous organization to specialize in the subject of traditional knowledge, the legal use, tools and mechanisms for defending such knowledge, knowledge of indigenous biodiversity, use of water, management of forests, indigenous literature of use to humanity, since human civilization now requires the traditional knowledge of indigenous peoples. Our participation in this international event would be an historic moment for Peru and the world in order to share the experiences after our involvement in such fundamental issues for life and future generations, as represented by traditional knowledge. This is the case since the influence of the United Nations on the Peruvian State authorities would be the starting point for better defense of our indigenous and natural knowledge. Also, because in Peru the laws on traditional knowledge have not allowed us to disseminate and promote the subject with government authorities.

As an ethnomusicologist, I have been interested in kponingbo since 1980, when I first became aware of it. Following my undergraduate dissertation, defended in 1984 at the National Institute of the Arts in Kinshasa, I decided, almost 30 years later, to leave my work at the University of Kinshasa to write a thesis on this genre of music. This is what I have been doing at Paris Descartes University since 2008 and I am now in my final year. I have already been on three missions for this genre, two on Zande soil in Uele and the most recent among the Zande community in Kinshasa. However, the equipment used did not allow me fully to capture all the elements of kponingbo: songs, music from three xylophonists, accompaniment from drums and rattles, and the dancing of participants - which are all intrinsic parts of it. Our task is to organize a large-scale expedition to the Zande regions to collect as many of these elements as possible and produce tracks for sale. The other task is to form a kponingbo music group that could take part in music festivals outside the Democratic Republic of the Congo. A significant part of the Zande regions have been overrun for some years now by Mbororos from Central Africa and Joseph Kony's Ugandan rebels; two factors that lead young people to flee their homes, and there is a risk that Zande music, which had, up until that point, been protected from external influences, will change when it comes into contact with other forms of music. This is why we need to act quickly.

introduction of contemporary cultural expressions born of contact with the western world, ABL plans to organize, without delay, a mission to collect what remains of the once fashionable practice of gathering traditional leaders together for dance contests. The last contest took place in the town of Madimba (100 km from Kinshasa) in 1955. Since there are only very few remaining spectators of the event, this type of show, with all that it entails, runs the risk of being lost to future generations unless an audiovisual record of it is soon created. Alongside this symbolic musical category, all the core music ensembles with a number of musicians and instruments still in existence will be re-established, to prevent them from disappearing altogether. Subsequently, ABL intends to launch a Festival of Congo Music, along with other Congo representatives. Although projects on these three objectives have been in place for several years, nothing has yet come of them.

We are approaching WIPO with the aim of obtaining financial aid to carry out these projects. Moreover, our culture is preserved by encouraging, in various ways, the talent already existing in these disciplines and that to come. Since Lukaya is situated so close to the capital, its entire cultural heritage is under threat. On the one hand, it is a question of managing the traditional and fusion artists spreading this culture in Kinshasa by finding a music publisher for them, to prevent them from falling prey to producers. They will therefore be able truly to enjoy the fruits of their labor. In exchange, ABL will request that they introduce young people to playing a musical instrument and other practices. On the other hand, talented individuals in the villages must continue to be offered financial motivation to help them to see that their activity nourishes the soul. Finally, given that Congo music is greatly and freely employed by modern artists, good organization will enable ABL to negotiate usage that benefits the rightful owners.

We consider it to be very useful that we work with our knowledge and enhance the benefit from the knowledge of our elders, in the handling of the traditional plantation, or Chagra, the implementation of the types of medicine, i.e. the production of curative grasses, animals, trees that produce curative essences for human beings and animals, which are the bastions of the domestic knowledge of our peoples and such defense is very necessary as this is our knowledge.

Additional Information:

Please provide any additional information which you feel may be relevant (maximum 150 words)

We are 15,000 indigenous people that live together in the region of Alto Putumayo, 9,000 Inga and 6,000 Camentsa brothers; in the Department of Putumayo we are around 50,000 people in a population of 360,000 inhabitants, and since we are at the foot of the Amazonian Andean mountain, we have the major need to protect what is ours, i.e. our knowledge, that will be bequeathed or given to our children for their own existence in the short, medium and long term; it is therefore necessary to protect our rights and especially our traditional knowledge which dates back thousands of years.

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters, including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

In Chile, in the past few decades Mapuche territories have been obliged to seek recourse to the national courts in order to defend their ancestral rights to the land, ceremonial centers, native forests, ancestral practices etc. Regrettably, there are no domestic indigenous bodies to protect the heritage of the indigenous cultures, and there is a lack of knowledge of the existence of international institutions responsible for facilitating, guiding and training experts, on the one hand, and on the other active participation in these bodies.

The Werken Kimun Corporation has, as part of its objectives, the protection and recognition of ancestral rights and intellectual property, which are specific to it and have been transmitted orally from generation to generation, in accordance with its territorial, community and family identity; our undertaking is to incorporate these subjects at the regional and national levels, by empowering our indigenous brothers with new tools in defense of their rights.

Country in which the Organization is primarily active:

Werken Kimun operates in Chile, with the participation of rural and urban Mapuche communities.

Additional Information:

Please provide any additional information which you feel may be relevant (maximum 150 words)

The vision which associates the indigenous world with rural or community areas, has changed significantly in the recent past, with more than 27 per cent of the national indigenous population currently being concentrated in the cities, taking into account a process of migration. This situation has led to an assimilation and stigmatization of ancestral knowledge, indigenous culture, customs and traditions, and the loss of the mother language. Indigenous leaders have to date struggled for their recognition as part of the Mapuche People. However, this has not been possible, and they currently remain without the right to land or to establish a community in Santiago. Concept of Urban Indigenous Persons: these are persons descended from the different Indigenous Peoples and who identify themselves as members of or belonging to an indigenous culture, who reside temporarily or permanently in the city for different migrational reasons (forced or voluntary).

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters, including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

For indigenous peoples, intellectual property rights constitute a very important value in terms of their existence. We are currently the victims of biopiracy, to a large extent on the part of the pharmaceutical industries which unlawfully enter our communities in order to become familiar with our medicinal plants and their formulae which are traditionally used to cure various diseases and to provide other benefits for life. We are unable to register our traditional knowledge, since it is impossible owing to the costly bureaucratic procedures involved. The pharmaceutical industries do not respect our traditional knowledge which is subject to unlawful customs clearance and then patented in order to be marketed and earn enormous amounts of money and generate profit from the health of poor people. We request WIPO to make our nations aware of this, so that once and for all the rights of indigenous peoples are recognized and respected.

Solidarité pour un Monde Meilleur is an organization that defends and promotes human rights, including intellectual property rights. Since we held the first Culture Week Forum in Kinshasa in 2009, artists who attended from all disciplines have expressed a desire for assistance with the procedures to protect their copyright and their brands. The same applies to the promotion, protection and defense of traditional knowledge and folklore for cultural groups and communities, such as the Pygmies and the Pende, in order to patent their knowledge and technology. To achieve this as far as possible, it is important to be in contact with international organizations and other bodies addressing issues of intellectual property to exchange experience, as well as to understand the procedure and practice to be followed at the international level.
