

Comité intergouvernemental de la propriété intellectuelle relative aux ressources génétiques, aux savoirs traditionnels et au folklore

Vingt-sixième session
Genève, 3 – 7 février 2014

ACCREDITATION DE CERTAINES ORGANISATIONS

Document établi par le Secrétariat

1. À sa première session, tenue à Genève du 30 avril au 3 mai 2001, le Comité intergouvernemental de la propriété intellectuelle relative aux ressources génétiques, aux savoirs traditionnels et au folklore (ci-après dénommé “comité”) a approuvé un certain nombre de questions d’organisation et de procédure, y compris l’octroi du statut d’observateur ad hoc à un certain nombre d’organisations ayant exprimé le désir de jouer un rôle dans les travaux du comité (voir le rapport adopté par le comité, paragraphe 18 du document WIPO/GRTKF/IC/1/13).

2. Depuis lors, plusieurs autres organisations ont fait part au Secrétariat de leur désir d’obtenir le même statut pour les futures réunions du comité. On trouvera en annexe un document contenant notamment les noms des organisations qui, avant le 5 décembre 2013, ont demandé à être accréditées à la vingt-sixième session du comité, ainsi que des renseignements biographiques sur ces organisations. Ces organisations ont été invitées à remplir un formulaire de demande d’accréditation. Les renseignements figurant dans l’annexe ont été communiqués tels quels par chacune des organisations.

3. Le comité est invité à approuver l’accréditation, en qualité d’observatrices ad hoc, des organisations mentionnées dans l’annexe du présent document.

- Establish a Traditional Knowledge platform for information exchange and lesson sharing.

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

The organization through the affiliated national umbrella association for Indigenous Peoples has been involved in the development of a national framework for the protection of TK and Folklore. The process has produced a draft document that is available for closed comments before submission to national discourse. Our involvement in this process is pivotal to our work in asserting the place of TK in policy formulation as well as protects the interest of Indigenous People that are often beyond legal dimensions and who must be centrally placed in discussing the access and protection of their resources. Through participation in the issues deliberated by the Committee, we will be in a position to infuse relevant knowledge gained from challenges in the national process to better the formulation of an ideal global protection mechanism from the range of tools available as well as gain from recommendations agreed upon for application in the national setting.

The discussion on the relationship between Intellectual Property law and Traditional Knowledge protection is a contemporary legal concern contending with issues as envisaged by Indigenous People that are within the IP law as well as normatively beyond the legal dimensions of IP law such as ethical, historical, political, moral and spiritual considerations. The choice for the most appropriate mechanism for the protection of TK from the available range of tools such as the IP law, sui generis, defensive protection and documentation or a combination of sorts remain an issue for consideration and the future development will fundamentally depend on adoption of a framework that will enhance indigenous peoples perspective and interpretations about existing and emerging knowledge management. It is a contention of Indigenous Peoples that TK is no longer a raw resource for use and benefit by other knowledge systems but as a legitimate knowledge base that is valuable beyond indigenous contexts.

BIOGRAPHICAL DETAILS OF THE APPLICANT ORGANIZATION

Full name of the Organization:

Cordillera Peoples Alliance

Description of the Organization: (maximum 150 words)

The Cordillera Peoples Alliance (CPA) is an independent federation of indigenous peoples and communities, and sectoral organizations in the Cordillera Region, Philippines. 150 delegates from 27 organizations attending the Cordillera Peoples's Congress in June 1984 in Bontoc, Mountain Province, founded the CPA. The founders were indigenous leaders and activists who spearheaded the widespread and successful opposition to the World Bank-funded Chico dams project and the commercial logging operations of the Cellophil Resources Corporation. Today its membership has grown to at least 270 organizations. CPA is a non-stock, non-profit mass-organization duly registered with the Philippine Securities and Exchange Commission.

Its main office is in Baguio City and has contact centers in all the provinces of the Cordillera.

Main aims and objectives of the Organization: (Please use a bulleted list)

- Recognition and promotion of indigenous peoples rights through campaigns, awareness building, information sharing, networking and advocacy;
- Empowerment of indigenous communities and organizations through education and training;
- Solidarity among indigenous and non-indigenous peoples in the Cordillera, country and abroad;
- Cultural renewal especially among the indigenous youth;
- Advocacy with government, intergovernment processes, UN and other relevant international fora

Main activities of the Organization: (Please use a bulleted list)

- Education and training on indigenous peoples rights, situations and issues;
- Capacity building on advocacy work such as effective participation in UN fora, leadership and management of indigenous organizations, developments on law and policy that impact on indigenous peoples;

- Public information such as publication of HAPIT – the CPA official newsletter; and
- Campaigns and mobilizations

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

The CPA believes that human rights include the rights of indigenous peoples. Indigenous peoples rights include the protection and enhancement of indigenous culture. Indigenous culture – our way of life and our identity is strongly linked with our lands. However, our indigenous culture and identity are equally threatened with the many issues involving our lands, territories, waters and resources. Indigenous TK/TCE should be protected, recognized and enhanced. This can be done through the effective participation of indigenous peoples in foras relevant to indigenous peoples such as but not limited to the development of standards giving due consideration to the particularity and situation of indigenous peoples; creating mechanisms for equitable benefits sharing; opening access for remedy and claims; and opportunities for training and sharing. Positive aspects of indigenous TK/TCE are enhanced and shared to others, and transferred to succeeding generations; giving honor to our ancestors.

the core of the university's agenda. The School of Communications has a specific reason for requesting to attend the meetings of the Intergovernmental Committee on Intellectual Property and Genetic Resources, Traditional Knowledge and Folklore. The School is currently home to a specific research project entitled Producing a Map for the Knowledge Economy. Funded by the Irish Research Council, core objectives of this project relate to examining approaches to the management of common knowledge resources, the economic and employment significance of knowledge and culture, and of role of intellectual property rights in shaping outcomes in these areas. Within this, the project examines how intellectual property issues are conceptualized, framed and described within domestic policy discourses.

- Documentation and dissemination of information: The association publishes a wide range of books, reports, manuals and audio-visual material on the rights of Indigenous Peoples and the right of indigenous people worldwide human situation.

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

The main mission of the association with the framework that leads WIPO is to promote the protection of intellectual works. Our association advocates for the preservation of culture and traditional knowledge of indigenous peoples these are the main concerns for which engage indigenous peoples. For indigenous communities, which are marked by a cultural and traditional close relationship with nature, protection is their livelihood. The Association supports initiatives and projects that contribute to the protection, preservation and promotion of all cultural aspects of Aboriginal culture and tradition. Physical persons do not take into account international guidelines such as the Declaration of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in 2007 which, inter alia, provided the right of indigenous peoples to first obtaining their consent, and that to adequate compensation in case of agreement from them. For this reason we are interested in the issues discussed by the Committee.

Association "Groupe d'Action pour le Developpement Durable" (GAD) is a regional non-governmental organization based in Kinshasa. This structure argues for the social integration of pygmies since its inception in 2001. GAD is of the opinion that all the peoples of Africa must be able to contribute to the economy and governance of our country. There was a time when indigenous peoples were respected for their extensive knowledge in both technical and spiritual forest, savannah and deserts. It is still often used by indigenous peoples for their healers, trackers of rainmakers, and experts on the behavior of wild animals. However, due to their marginalization by the colonial regimes, indigenous peoples are often ignored by African states or simply regarded as anachronistic and "backward". The culture and economy of many indigenous peoples are endangered because the policies and practices exercised ignore their needs and their knowledge.

Application Form for Accreditation as Ad Hoc Observer to the WIPO Intergovernmental Committee on Intellectual Property and Genetic Resources, Traditional Knowledge and Folklore^{1,2}

BIOGRAPHICAL DETAILS OF THE APPLICANT ORGANIZATION

Full name of the Organization:

Indigenous Information Network (IIN)

Description of the Organization: (maximum 150 words)

Indigenous Information Network (IIN) is a non-profit, Non-Governmental Organization (NGO) registered in the Republic of Kenya under the Non-Governmental Organization Act of 1990. It was founded in 1996 and was legally registered in 1998. The organisation was founded by a group of professionals in response to addressing needs particularly regarding availing information through media and other channels about indigenous peoples, their livelihoods and challenges they face as they struggle to exist. IIN has been involved in dissemination of information, community development, lobbying and advocacy activities in support of indigenous and minority peoples in the region as well internationally.

Indigenous Information Network existing mission is “ to promote, protect rights, empower and build capacity of indigenous peoples through education, environmental conservation, human rights, and training, and research. The underlying issue that motivated the founder members of IIN is that indigenous and minority peoples have been marginalized from mainstream development agenda particularly due to their ways of life (nomadic pastoralists or hunters and gatherers). IIN recognizes that the way indigenous peoples live is sustainable and worth supporting. This belief has been supported by the organisation through the activities it has undertaken since its initiation. The organisation’s main thrust is creation of awareness of the status quo of indigenous groups and initiation of activities that address bottlenecks hindering advancement of the systems in place

The main aim of the IIN is:

- To create, maintain, promote, lobby for, strengthen, enhance and build the capacity and the socio-economic opportunities and development of the indigenous and minority peoples of Kenya Indigenous Information Network main aim is “to contribute to improvement of quality of life and livelihood of indigenous and minority peoples”
- To enhance and maintain the capacity of indigenous peoples to protect their rights and participate in development

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

Indigenous Information Network has been working with communities for a long period in East Africa in building their capacity on matters that relate to intellectual property in terms of building peoples understanding of intellectual property rights and existing legal frameworks that protect intellectual property rights

Indigenous and local communities hold intellectual property in form of innovations and creative expressions of knowledge that is crucial for their livelihood and development as peoples. IIN has been engaged with government of Kenya in its processes of developing access and benefit sharing guidelines and other policies related to traditional knowledge.

Our participation in the international and regional process on ABS as well as the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD) where issues of Intellectual Property arise in genetic resources is the driving factor for our wish to engage in WIPO. The organization also intends to undertake capacity-building programs to support the development of legal and practical initiatives to IP genetic resources, ABS and Traditional Knowledge issues.

Country in which the Organization is primarily active:

IIN is active in Kenya where it is registered. It also works and extends its projects/programs beyond the borders to cover Uganda and Tanzania. Our remit has expanded regionally since we host the Africa Indigenous Women Network and support the Indigenous Peoples International Forums Africa regional work for instance in the case of the Biodiversity work.

Additional Information:

Please provide any additional information which you feel may be relevant (maximum 150 words)

Indigenous Information Network was granted a Special consultative status in July 2012 and is accredited to the Basel Convention, Stockholm Convention, Rotterdam Convention and United Nations Environment Program (UNEP) as an observer organization.

Indigenous Information Network has predominantly been a national and regional organization, but developments over the past years have seen our international remit expand- including contributions to international events that cover climate change, biodiversity, desertification issues, rights, education, and sustainable development among other.

IIN has also played a leading role in developing an international coalition of Indigenous Peoples and forums to engage in partnership work to encourage dialogue with national, regional and international policy makers.

Application Form for Accreditation as Ad Hoc Observer to the WIPO Intergovernmental Committee on Intellectual Property and Genetic Resources, Traditional Knowledge and Folklore^{1,2}

BIOGRAPHICAL DETAILS OF THE APPLICANT ORGANIZATION

Full name of the Organization:

International Potato Center (CIP)

Description of the Organization: (maximum 150 words)

The International Potato Center, known by its Spanish acronym CIP, was founded in 1971 as a root and tuber research-for-development institution delivering sustainable solutions to the pressing world problems of hunger, poverty, and the degradation of natural resources. CIP is headquartered in Lima, Peru and has regional offices in 30 developing countries across Asia, Africa, and Latin America. Working closely with its partners, CIP seeks to achieve food security, increased well-being, and gender equity for poor people in the developing world. CIP furthers its mission through rigorous research, innovation in science and technology, and capacity strengthening regarding root and tuber farming and food systems.

CIP is a founding Member the CGIAR Consortium, a global partnership that unites organizations engaged in research for a food secure future. CGIAR research is dedicated to reducing rural poverty, increasing food security, improving human health and nutrition, and ensuring more sustainable management of natural resources.

Main aims and objectives of the Organization: (Please use a bulleted list)

- Combating micronutrient deficiency with resilient, nutritious sweet potato
- Enhancing food security in Asia through the intensification of local cereal-based systems with adapted potato varieties.
- Improving the livelihoods of potato farmers in Africa by tackling deteriorated seed quality through an integrated approach
- Accelerating the discovery of gamechanging solutions for enhancing food security
- Addressing food security challenge through roots and tubers by transforming vulnerability to resilience
- Conserving diversity for the future with the CIP Genebank

Main activities of the Organization: (Please use a bulleted list)

- Plant breeding

- Germplasm acquisition, conservation, cleaning and distribution for use for research, breeding and teaching world-wide
- Study and support for crop management and production systems
- Study, development and support of value chains for achieving food security
- Technical assistance and capacity building for national and regional stakeholders in roots and tubers farming

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

CIP holds an important ex situ and in vitro collection of roots and tubers germplasm. We collaborate with national and regional partners, indigenous and local communities and small-holder farmers in documenting, conserving and improving genetic diversity. We use the Standard Material Transfer Agreement of the International Treaty on Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture for accessing and distributing these GR. As a public sector research organization, committed to "open access" data and knowledge we are critically positioned for protecting traditional knowledge and broadly disseminating information and data to our target beneficiaries. However intellectual property management plays an equally crucial role in technological innovation and advancement of science. The current discussion at the IGC around IP protection on GR's and access and benefit sharing is complementary to the existing systems under the ITPGRFA, the CBD and UPOV and as primary users of these systems we are interested in learning from the discussions and providing feedback on their effects on in international agricultural research

Country in which the Organization is primarily active:

CIP Headquarters are in Lima, Peru.

We have regional offices in India, Kenya, China and Ecuador, covering a broad range of research and development activities in Asia, sub-Saharan Africa, China and Latin America and the Caribbean.

IPR Aware World

Description of the Organization: (maximum 150 words)

IPR Aware World mediates intellectual property (IP) education and awareness programs in different social communities. These programs provide a basic and essential education that is aimed at raising awareness on various IP issues and creating an informed society in terms of protecting the intellectual values of artists, inventors, social creators, etc. We empower people with essential Intellectual Property (IP) information such as introductory knowledge of patents, copyrights, trademarks, industrial designs, traditional knowledge, geographical indications etc. so that this will serve as an impetus for social change.

These programs, projects and events are driven in both rural communities as well as urban areas. We cover a broad range of issues including IP education availability in schools, colleges, universities, research institutions, social associations, inventor hubs, government and private organizations.

Main aims and objectives of the Organization: (Please use a bulleted list)

- Aim: IPR Aware World has a deep belief that every human can and must attain an essential knowledge of Intellectual Property (IP) Rights. That moment will surely come in our lifetime itself.
- Objectives: To promote the acknowledgment and improvement of the intellectual property (IP) rights awareness.
- To foster the setting up of close interactions between social welfare and intellectual property assets.
- To organize social meetings on intellectual property matters and promoting the involvement of common masses and approach them on intellectual property (IP) matters.

We have started this initiative to educate the societies non-profitably about their own intellectual rights. Also, to protect their own innovation values or intellectual values for their soci-economic development through the economic incentives as well as moral rights. IPR Aware World want to reach and uncovered areas (like rural areas, least developing countries, developing countries etc) to make them aware about their own intellectual property protection. We are committed to conserve local biodiversity and values of geographical indications through IPR awareness public events which are globally accessible and useful among local people. We also represented our concern related to the IPR importance in global societies through this initiative. All of the assets of the initiative are liquidated to provide non-profit supports to a variety of social activities working to build a sustainable environment of creativity and innovation through IPR awareness public events.

- Our initiative is included in WIPO Outreach Database (Added on Aug. 02, 2013)
- We have connected with Global Universities groups or members, by nominating them as international members
- We have launched 10+ social media channels with worldwide user access. For African region IPR Awareness, we have created a special video channel at one Africa based social media channel. In order to promote IPR awareness public events in South-East Asian countries, we have started one another special social media channel for updating news of our events and programs.
- To encourage people about WIPO Academy courses, we have started a new campaign titled as "Share Your WIPO DL-101 Story, Get a Free T-Shirt"
- Connected with African regional students, in order to establish a strong social interaction with them. Lot of concerns, were raised related to the Intellectual Property (IP) Rights awareness in African continent.

- We are working to safeguard and protect the cultural heritage of the pygmies and the Mbororo people of Cameroon through constant use.
- We also working are to protect any violation or misappropriation on the right of indigenous peoples and their traditional knowledge.
- SAMUSA, is working to register the traditional knowledge by writing.

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters, including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

Mbororo are Indigenous people who are about 8 to 10 regions of Cameroon and counts about 2.5 million. They are pastoralists who depend on cattle rearing for their livelihood. Also, pygmies are found in the eastern region of Cameroon and they depend on forest for their livelihood and they use it for their medicinal plants. SAMUSA is out to protect the traditional knowledge and genetic resources so that it should not perish with time. For example Mbororo people are very knowledgeable in ethno-veterinary medicine so SAMUSA is working with them to see that it is acknowledge and protected. SAMUSA has noticed that some medicinal plants are fast disappearing due to climate change and population pressure, elders are dying without transforming knowledge, younger generations are moving to settle in towns, lack of proper skills to adequate record traditional knowledge and also inadequate efforts are made by the government to protect traditional knowledge

Relationship of the Organization with intellectual property matters including a full explanation of why you are interested in the issues under discussion by the Committee (Maximum 150 words)

Intellectual Property and knowledge transfer from universities stirs heated debate and is the object of strong policy interest in developing countries like Uganda. In order to contribute to economic growth, development and improvement in standards of living, universities have a broad and changing role in national innovation systems that ranges from general education to basic research yet, intellectual property is only one of many channels through which knowledge flows between universities and industry.

IP regulations cover many delicate issues (e.g. subject matter, type of licenses, research exemptions) which may affect scientists' choices about the number and type of research projects to undertake and, therefore, the trajectory of research and type of knowledge created is essential to our university. The knowledge bases of different scientific disciplines differ substantially and this creates different research and disclosure methods on the university side.

Patenting and licensing from universities are particularly important phenomena in biotechnology, drugs and medical science, scientists, managers and technology transfer practitioners. In regarding the use of intellectual property in universities, it explores the effects of intellectual property on technology transfer and on the processes of knowledge creation and scientific development. In particular, there are some dilemmas when the university is trying to designing its IP policy. So the university relates to intellectual property in that way.

Reasons for our interest are: Traditional Knowledge has been defined as "a cumulative body of knowledge, know-how, practices and representations maintained and developed by peoples with extended histories of interaction with the natural environment." These sophisticated sets of understandings, interpretations and meanings are part and parcel of our curriculum, cultural complex that encompasses language.

Traditional knowledge, on the other hand, is perceived differently by indigenous and local communities themselves. As a university community we usually call workshops and sensitive the communities about IP.

Indigenous intellectual property is an umbrella legal term used in national and international forums to identify indigenous peoples' special rights.

IPLP instructors and students work with tribes on repatriation issues and study the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act as well as ownership of indigenous culture. IPLP offers a class called "Who Owns Native Culture", which addresses intellectual property issues. Sacred sites, traditional knowledge and aboriginal lands are covered in other IPLP classes and are included in the dissertations some students are writing. Faculty and staff are working with indigenous groups with respect to traditional lands, culture, and the free practice of religion. These are issues of great interest to both instructors and students at IPLP.
