

Karoli Hindriks is an Estonian entrepreneur, the CEO & founder of Jobbatical, a startup Forbes named one of Europe's 10 Most Exciting Technology SMEs For 2018. Jobbatical is working on removing the friction of international relocation by making immigration processes seamless through technology.

In 2017 Karoli was nominated to speak at the Fortune Magazine Most Powerful Women International Summit. In 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, and 2020 EU-Startups named her one of the 50 most influential women in the European startup and VC space. In 2020 the EU Council named her one of the 8 most inspiring women in Europe. In 2021 she was a speaker at the TED conference in Monterey, California. Karoli founded her first company at 16, officially becoming the youngest inventor in her native Estonia. She also led the launch of seven television channels in Northern Europe, incl. National Geographic Channels and MTV.