

Dr. Roman Lapka got his MA in biochemistry and PhD in pharmacology at Charles University, Prague. His scientific career covered development of biochemical screening methods and experimental and clinical pharmacokinetics. After joining Zentiva in 1993 he worked as project manager, director of strategic marketing and director of intellectual property. His main activities currently cover patents, trademarks and evaluation of new projects for development.

About Zentiva:

Zentiva is a leading pharmaceutical company in Central and Eastern Europe having a turnover nearing 1 billion Euro. It is a generic and generic plus company striving to bring best available health care to a population at affordable price. Its main target is treating diseases of cardiovascular, gastrointestinal, central nervous and skeletal systems.