

Submission of Information by Third Parties

Serbia

In accordance with Patent Law Article 106, in proceedings before the Intellectual Property Office of the Republic of Serbia (IPO RS), any third party may present observations concerning the patentability of the invention to the application, once the publication of the patent application was made. That person will not be a party to the proceedings before the IPO RS. No fee is required for the submission of observations.

Observations by third parties may be considered in the substantive examination, if the examiner of the related application determines that they may affect the patentability of the invention. IPO RS does not inform third party of any further action it takes in response to submitted observations.
